Getting Started

This guide gives you basic information about the resources that our families use most frequently to help pay for college. Families often combine several of the following options to create the plan that works best for them.

If you still can't find what you're looking for, or have questions, don't hesitate to contact us. Our financial aid advisers are available to help you learn more about your options.

We're here to help.

“The financial aid opportunity that Hopkins gave me was much better than that of any of the state schools that I applied to. The financial assistance there wasn't going to back me up as much as Hopkins is doing right now. That really pushed [my decision to enroll], but I think, overall, Hopkins is an amazing place to do something important.”

Financing Options

Federal Direct Loan Programs

Federal loan programs help make college more affordable by enabling families to spread educational expenses over time.

Maximum Loan Limits:

- Freshmen $5,500
- Sophomores $6,500
- Juniors $7,500
- Seniors $7,500

Details:

- Repayment begins six months after the student completes his/her studies or drops below half-time status.
- A 1.069 percent federal fee is deducted from the loan proceeds prior to disbursement.

The origination fee may change depending on congressional legislation.

Federal Direct Student Loans can be subsidized or unsubsidized. Eligibility for both loan types is determined on the basis of the information your family provides on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).

Subsidized Federal Direct Loans are need-based. The federal government pays the interest while you're in school at least half-time and for the first six months after you graduate or drop below half-time status. The interest rate for 2016–17 is 3.76 percent. Interest rates are set annually in June.

Unsubsidized Federal Direct Loans are not need-based and are available to all students regardless of income. Interest accrues on the loan beginning at the time of disbursement and can be paid monthly, or quarterly, or capitalized upon graduation. Independent students and dependent students whose parents are denied a PLUS loan may borrow an additional unsubsidized loan. Freshmen and sophomores can borrow an additional $4,000 per year, while juniors and seniors can borrow an additional $5,000 per year.

Federal Direct Parent PLUS Loans are federally guaranteed loans available to parents of dependent undergraduate students. There is no financial need requirement to receive these loans, but the student must submit a FAFSA and meet federal eligibility requirements. The parent borrower must not have an adverse credit history. Borrowers are eligible to request up to the full cost of attendance minus any financial aid the student receives.

PLUS Loan Application Process:

1. Complete the 2017–18 Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).
2. Request a PLUS loan online at www.studentloans.gov. Requests for 2017–18 will be accepted beginning on May 1.
3. New Federal Direct PLUS loan borrowers will also need to sign a Master Promissory Note, available on the Direct Loan website: www.studentloans.gov.

Credit Review:

■ A credit review is required for a PLUS loan. There is no “debt-to-income” review, but you must pass a credit check. Your credit may be considered adverse if you are experiencing foreclosure, have accounts that are 90 days or more delinquent, or are in default on a loan. Visit https://studentaid.ed.gov/glossary#Adverse_Credit_History for more information about PLUS loan credit requirements.

■ A co-borrower/endorser option is offered if the borrower's credit is denied.

■ Credit checks are valid for 180 days. We advise borrowers to wait until the summer before applying for the upcoming year. Processing will begin in June.

“Hopkins is, by far, worth the investment we have made in [our child]’s education. I would definitely encourage all parents who are considering Hopkins to look at the bottom line numbers. Of course, everyone’s situation is different—but it’s worth a discussion.”

— Parent of a current Hopkins student

PLUS Loan Terms:

- The interest rate for 2016–17 is 6.31 percent. Interest rates are set annually in June.
- Interest begins accruing after the first disbursement.
- A 4.276 percent origination/default fee is deducted from each disbursement.
- The origination fee may change depending on congressional legislation.

PLUS Loan Disbursement:

■ Disbursements are scheduled at the beginning of each semester and are deposited directly into the student's account.

PLUS Loan Repayment:

- Standard repayment begins 60 days after the loan is fully disbursed. “Fully disbursed” means that all installments (fall and spring) have been posted to a student's account. This typically occurs in late January, with repayment beginning in March/April.
- Parents may choose to defer payments up to six months after the student completes his/her studies or drops below half-time status. Interest will accrue and be capitalized quarterly. Parents may choose to pay the interest on a monthly or quarterly basis.
- There is no pre-payment penalty.
- Consolidation options and extended graduated repayment plans are available.

Monthly Payment Plan

A plan is available to parents to help meet the expected family contribution and/or pay the full cost of Johns Hopkins University with manageable monthly payments. The plan allows parents to pay up to the annual cost of tuition and room/board in 10 equal monthly installments, with payments beginning on June 1. No interest is charged, but there is an enrollment fee of $90. Many families combine the monthly payment plan with other options, such as the PLUS loan, to pay for college in the way that makes the most sense for their families. Many combinations are possible. For more information about the Tuition Management Systems (TMS) Monthly Payment Plan, go to www.jhuhomewood.afford.com or call 1-800-722-4867.

Additional Scholarship Sources

Outside/Private Scholarships from external organizations can be a valuable source of aid. We want students to get the full value of their scholarships, so you may use your private scholarships to replace the loan and/or work portion of your financial aid package. Johns Hopkins University grants/scholarship aid will only be reduced if the total amount of private scholarship assistance is greater than the loan and work portion of your financial aid offer. All scholarships must be reported to Student Financial Services. More information about this policy may be found online at www.jhu.edu/finaid.

ROTC Scholarships provide full tuition for highly qualified students who desire to serve their country as Army officers. Contact the Department of Military Science at www.jhu.edu/rotc or by calling 410-516-4685. Air Force scholarships may also be used at JHU.

Veteran Benefits at Hopkins work the same way as outside scholarships. They can be used to reduce loan and work study first and then to reduce a JHU grant when total aid exceeds financial need. Hopkins participates in all veteran programs, including Yellow Ribbon and the Post 9/11 GI Bill.

Higher Education Tax Benefits

There are several federal income tax benefit programs available for families who have expenses for higher education. Your family may qualify for the American Opportunity or Life Time Learning Tax Credits. Information and eligibility requirements for tax benefits are available in IRS Publication 970 or at www.irs.gov.

Other Financing Sources

Some families choose other financing options, such as home equity loans, lines of credit, or borrowing against life insurance. Please contact your accountant and/or financial planner to discuss these options.
