YOUTH — CONFERENCE

Johns Hopkins University invites you to attend Excel Youth Conference—a free, one-day event for high school students and their families in the Baltimore and Washington, DC areas. This is a chance for talented students in our community and their support systems to learn how to successfully navigate the college search and application process.

The Excel Youth Conference will focus on:

- Taking advantage of the opportunities available at your high school and local community
- Identifying what matters to you in the college search
- How to showcase your unique qualities in the application process
- Academics and student life at Hopkins
- Financial planning and support
